

General terms and conditions of use

The contents of this website, including in particular the texts, images, photographs, multimedia applications and other elements contained therein, are the property of GLOMARKET, with the exception of the content provided by advertisers or business partners who are identified as such.

GLOMARKET reserves the right to use the information provided by the user to make contacts to promote its initiatives and services.

The user is merely authorized to make use of the contents and newsletter for strictly personal purposes, being expressly forbidden to publish, reproduce, disseminate, distribute in any way that makes the contents accessible to third parties for marketing purposes, by making them available on another website (electronic service) , virtual forum or hard copies).

It is strictly forbidden to copy, reproduce and disseminate all or part of all the contents of this website without express authorization, whatever the means used, with the exception of the right of citation defined in the law of the Code of Copyright and Rights Connections.

No person or entity involved in the creation, production or distribution of the seuite.pt website will be responsible for any losses or damages, direct or indirect, arising from the use of the contents sent by email. The user accepts that these provisions apply to all content included on the website.

Accessing the site seuite.pt does not dispense with prior knowledge of the general conditions for the use of its content and respective services, which implies that the user and the visitor have full knowledge of them.

GLOMARKET is not responsible for the quality, safety, functionality, legality or legality of the links and resources referenced outside the site seuite.pt

It is expressly forbidden to any user to create or introduce any type of virus or programs that alter or damage the functioning and the contents made available through the site seuite.pt or the newsletter.

GLOMARKET does not guarantee that the site seuite.pt and the sending of information by email will work without interruption or be free of errors.

GLOMARKET reserves the right, without any prior notification, to change the terms and conditions of use of the website.